with:

- Having a substance use assessment done by a trained clinical social worker
- Receiving individual and / or family therapy

Addiction can happen at any age, but studies show us that it typically starts when a person is young and the truth is that drug addiction can happen to anyone. If your child starts behaving differently or you notice some of these signs:

- Deteriorating relationships with family or friends
- Troubles in school or with the law
- Changes in eating or sleeping habits
- Missing school or skipping class
- Decline in academic performance
- Carelessness with grooming
